

Einstein's solution also says that time is the joker in the deck. It creates twins (eyes); one present, the other a necessary implication. It says that it is the eye and what it sees at the same time. It also says: my other eye is your eye, an eye at a different time.

Life is a communication sent and received. That creates time. "Alive" means sending and receiving. Alive means time bound. There is no time without life. There is no meaning without sequential time. Life is time. I am doing life.

Life is time-bound. Or is it? How could that be tested? A message sent, ... [did he send a secret message to himself?]

Being out of sequential time, it means it is in synchronic time. A message for all time.

But who is it to? A message is generalized. To everybody forever always. Specific to generalized. I, specific, send a message. Stop. I, generalized, forever receive it. My message is eternal communication. I am in the message. I am what is communicated. I am the communication.
I am you. That is you.
